

Members have their say –

“Call a strike vote if necessary – 'cause that's just not good enough!”

In a lively pizza lunch today, OPSEU members at OPTrust didn't mince words in response to the Employer's most recent bargaining proposal: you told us, "call a strike vote if necessary – because that's just not good enough."

Your bargaining team was encouraged and impressed by your resolve - and your recognition that it is only together that we can see a reasonable settlement that reflects your priorities.

Unfortunately, we are unable to arrange a strike vote in time for our next day of conciliation of Friday. But we heard your message that a strike vote may be the only option if the employer refuses to make significant movement on your behalf.

Your OPSEU team will be in touch to fill you in on Friday's developments.

And don't forget to continue to let Management know that you deserve a fair settlement!

In solidarity,

Three ways YOU can make a difference!

The next day may be our last chance to tell management to table a fair offer on Friday – so your OPSEU Mobilizing Committee is asking for YOUR support.

1 Dress down – way down!
Wear your grubbiest jeans and your oldest t-shirt to work tomorrow. Help show management that if they want you to look like professionals and work like professionals, they'll have to pay you like professionals.

2 Button up!
Put on an “Up your offer” button to help make sure management gets the message.

3 Accessorize
Don't forget to wear your OPSEU wristbands and lanyards!
